SUPREME COUNCIL ACTS ON DE MAND OF CENTRAL POWERS IN RELATION TO SHIPS.

AMERICANS TAKE SIDES

Agree With British in Opinion That Enable Them to Pay Off Debt.

[BT ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, March 8.—The supreme council when it met today, expected to settle the difficulty over the German merchant ships by arranging for the food supplies asked for by Germany, which the American delegation regard as part of the armistice plodge to Germany.

the American decisions the part of the armistice plodge to Germany.

Payment may be taken by charging off a sum for the use of the German off a sum for the use of the German ships and also by German gold. The French, however, hesitate to permit this diversion of funds which, they hold, is part of the reparation.

The American commissioners have found themselves in a position where they must take sides on the conflicting views of the British and the French views of the British and the French regarding the reparation to be exacted from Germany, upon which the whole settlement hinges.

British Favor Food Relief.

The British feel that to secure the great sum of money to be demanded of the Germans the lutter must be onabled to receive at the carliest possible ability to a secure of the conduction of the proceeds of again, so that out of the proceeds of that business they might pay their debts.

The French do not believe that the thatb usiness they might pay their debts.

The French do not believe that the German business interests should be permitted to get back into their preparativity until the stricken business interests of Fiance and Beigium have at least caught up with them. They at least of France and lines.

The Americans, it is understood, the Americans, it is understood, to consisting of 11 counties of the southern part of the state, was the southern part of the state, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Fook Prairie Community club that fook the one to be adopted.

The Americans, it is understood, the Explained the distribution of the good roads.

Trovailing opinion in conference circles, the Temps doctares, is that the cles, the Temps doctares, is that the unandate for Armenia. It is expected that Smyna will be allotted to Greece, the mandate for Syria, including permanent lines used in building permanent lines used samoa, which will be administered by Samoa, which will be administered by New Zealand.

The question of the internationall-mation of railways and international waterways has come into sudden importance. The British desire to have the waterways used without discrimination, while the Americans, are insistent upon confining the application of the principle of international use of such communications to special cases to be enumerated.

Hoover Made Rail Head.

The supremewar council has decided to give Herbert C. Hoover practical control of all the railways in the old Austrian empire.

The Italians, who had been maintaining a food blockade against Jugo Slavia, have finally allowed their differences with the Jugo Slavs to be settled by a commission.

Soldier Riots in Wales Officially Explained

IBY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lon, Friday, March 7.—An official London, Friday, March 7.—An official London, Friday, March 7.—An official statement issued by Canadian military headquarters in reference to rloting at Kinmel park, Wales embarkation camp, says it is regretted that some of the accounts of the fighting, in which Canadian soldiers took part, exaggerate the seriousness of the incident but gives no details of what happened.

It is explained that lack of ship-incident but gives no details of what happened.

It is explained that lack of shipping facilities to take Canadian soldiers back home is due partly to strikes and it is stated that the dissettisfaction of the soldiers over alleged preferential treatment in embarkations may be attributed to the fact that the men have been divided into section, according to the Canadian military districts from which they came. By this means some shorter service men were sent home ahead of some who had been under arms for a longer period.

COUR SATURDAY NIGHT

President Wilson assures the senate and the nation that the it is high time that something radical was done. proposed constitution of the league of nations in nowise imperils will fight to maintain that doctrine, instead of the United States alone, as now.

Some senators are not convinced of this, however, and may Monroe doctrine. It is well, at this juncture, to revert to the text of the declaration made in 1823 by President Monroe. The vital passage reads as follows:

"With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and main tained it and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

It was a Democratic president, Cleveland, who served notice on Europe and the rest of the world that the Monroe doctrine was "applicable to every stage of our national existence." Since Cleve- party in power is responsible. land every president has had occasion to invoke the cherished doctrine and reaffirm it.

Today President Wilson and former President Taft solemnly assure the nation that the proposed constitution of the league of nations would give world sanction to that policy and universalize it. There could be under it no interference with or encroachment on any nation or state, American, European, or other. Such ar attempt, it is asserted, would lead to a boycott of or even to military resistance against the would-be aggressor.

In principle, then, there is no issue or disagreement. Al recognize that the Monroe doctrine must stand and be fully, indubitably protected. The only question is, Has this been done, or does the proposed covenant need amendment to effectuate the avowed purpose? In the opinion of the Daily News the covenant should be amended to cover the point specifically.

The Chicago Daily News thus puts into a single sentence the pith of the Monroe doctrine. A clear understanding of what this old docrtine is, just now, is of peculiar interest because it is the bone of contention which has led to the break between President Wilson and the United States senate a break which might easily have been avoided, and for which the president is alone responsi-

The small governments referred to are South American on, none can get in where the sky republics, numbering some twenty or more, over whom the United States has long acted as a protectorate. These little countries by March. sometimes have, internal disturbances and a rebellion develops. It will be remembered that ex-President Roosevelt, during his administration, quelled a riot in one of them by sending down a battleship with a company of marines. Later we were called upon to aid Cuba in establishing a republican form of government, by to and Guoa in establishing a republican form of government, at a giance throwing off the Spanish yoke which had oppressed the people for An his friends and foes, and he orcenturies, and President Wilsom himself thought it necessary to send a fleet to Vera Cruz, a few years ago, to protect the people from internal revolution in Mexico.

The Monroe doctrine has stood the test of time for nearly a century. It has protected our small dependencies from invasion time and again and has long been considered of vital importance who taps at the door of the lodge time and again and has long been considered of vital importance to the welfare of the nation. While the Paris peace convention has been in star chamber session, ever since it was organized, and this country has the most fragmentary knowledge of what has been done, enough has leaked out to assure us that the covenant adopted was drawn by Great Britain. It is easy to understand the low though fat; there are times he's a whimsical fellow that Public is imposed the Monyoo doctrine in this government but though fat: why Britain ignored the Monroe doctrine, in this covenant, but difficult to explain why our delegation, composed largely of President Wilson and Colonel House, should allow the vital question to be ignored.

Of course we are assured by the president—and by ex-President of President of Pre

Of course we are assured by the president—and by ex-President Taft, who has become his echo—that the Monroe doctrine is strengthened through the formation of the Peace League. Whether this is by verbal agreement or by some telepathic communication, is not stated, but common sense suggests to every thoughtful mind that this covenant will live long after the men who made it have passed on. The Monroe doctrine is of enough importance to the American people to demand written recognition. For this a majority of the United States senate contend, and because of this President Wilson has sailed away for France, on his second mission with his heart full of bitterness, his mind badly disturbed, and his exchequer short five million dollars because the appropriation for expenses went into the scrap heap, with a lot of unfinded with the service of the state of the scrap heap, with a lot of unfinded with the scrap heap. Thought 10 the scrap heap is the service of the service of the scrap heap is the service of the s ation for expenses went into the scrap heap, with a lot of unfin-

The president left the country in defiant mood, and in doing so lost much of the prestige which he has long enjoyed. When he said to the senate, "Refuse to pass this army appropriation bill and I will disband the army," he was talking like a pedagog, and not like the leader of a great nation. And when he assured his New York audience that he would tell the people across the water that the American people were with him solidly, his lack of knowledge, as to public sentiment was inexcusable. Washington has been hearing from home ever since Wilson departed, and the party leaders are so disturbed that a compromise will be arranged if possible. ، عن عن عني عني

The American people are an impulsive people and more or less emotional. When President Wilson landed in Boston, the other day, the whole city turned out to welcome him, and one hundred thousand admirers failed to gain admission to the hall where he spoke. He had been the leading figure in the peace conference for three months because he represented a great ideal which appealed to humanity everywhere. That France and England were not entirely in sympathy with him, has since developed. They were too near the great battlefields to forget the carnage and devastation, and they naturally demanded retribution as one of the first requisites of permanent peace.

So far as this country is concerned there has never been any doubt about the endorsement of a peace treaty that would insure the world against war for the next century at least. This sentiment is stronger today than ever before and it is to be regretted that President Wilson does not comprehend the situation. The opposition developed in the senate and throughout the country, is not against the principle involved, but against the methods employed by the president to bring it about. The United States senate and the people simply ask for time to analyze the Paris covenant, prepared by Great Britain. They feel that American rights must be safeguarded and protected, and so a majority of the senators, acting for the people, have permitted the president to return in Boston, that all the United States to Paris without the endorsement he desired.

This will not be much of a surprise to the convention there assembled, because in spite of the rigid censorship maintained, enough has leaked out to keep the foreign nations fairly well advised as to American sentiment. This censorship, by the way, has been the cause of much of the trouble and but for it President Wilson would have saved himself much embarrassment and humiliation. The United States senate should have been represented on the American commission, and then with the censorship removed there would have been nothing to explain. It was too large a contract for any one man, as President Wilson has discovered to his sorrow. Just what the outcome will be is difficult to forecast. There will be time enough to arrange the details of a Peace League after peace is declared. This seems to be the senti- a new saloon. ment today in France and England. Delay is certainly making matters worse. With Bolshevism rampant and Germany defiant,

In the meantime our own country is suffering from the clithe Monroe doctrine, but, on the contrary, extends, strengthens max of democratic inefficiency. With a president spending much and revivines it. The whole league, he says, with Taft and others, of his time abroad, the sixty-third congress closed the most rebecause most of the important business was left for final action until the last day in the afternoon, and so our army and navy, as well as our railroads, are left without funds for an indefinite insist on amendments or explicit reservations recognizing the period. Many of our soldier boys have been without pay for months and they are likely to be for months to come. The president considers his presence at the peace conference of vital importance. Perhaps it is. But we have a vice-president and all the machinery of government ready for business at a moment's notice, and there is plenty of business waiting. Why then did the president refuse to call an extra session, and permit the new congress to straighten out the tangle left by the last session?

When he left the country the first time he said to congress. then in session: "I will be in constant touch with you." Conditions have not changed except in political complexion, but the sixty-fourth as well as the sixty-third congress is composed of men elected to serve the people and the former is entitled to the same degree of confidence as the latter. The business of the country is badly disturbed because of the neglect of our law-makers, and the

It is an old saying that death and taxes never disappoint us. We usually like to think of death as a long way ahead, but are constantly reminded that taxes are at the door with demands as insistent as the visit of the grim messenger. There was never a time when the old adage, "Blessed be nothing," was quite as comforting as now, when so many people are sweating and swearing over income tax blanks. Never mind! We will get Hog Island paid for after a while, as well as a few other war relics, and with a Peace League established will dawn an era of external and internal peace. "So mote it be."

GEORGE S. PARKER IS CHOSEN CHAIRMAN FOR COUNTY VICTORY LOAN

George S. Parker was unanimously elected county charman of the victory loan campaign at a meeting of over 25 workers at the Grand. Hotel last night. He takes the place made vacant by M. G. Jeffris, who is forced to resign because of a physical breakdown, following exhausting work in war and kindred activities.

Mr. Parker was chairman of the war chest committee, which made an almost perfect record in the county. At the present time there are less than 25 people who have failed to pay their quota to the fund. Confidence was expressed at the meeting last night that he would make a similar success of the coming loan.

Ef J. Kearney, federal director of sales, who was notified early in the winter of Mr. Jeffris' Inability to continue the work, was present at the meeting. Charles Pierce, Chicago, district manager, was also there.

A. E. Matheson and Joseph M. Connors, Janesville, and George S. Wolcott, Beloit, were elected vice chairmen.

"The details of the next loan are not con-lete." Mr. Kearney said. "It is prob. ble, however, that the interest rate will be higher and the expiration time shorter. Additional tax exemptions will also make the bonds desirable.

"The loan will be for either live or desirable.

"The loan will be for either live or six billion dollars. The securities will be so desirable that it is expected that the people will seek them, rather than subsequitions." the people will seek that, the people will be sought for subscriptions. The report of Mr. Jeffris showed the county loan organization intact, and ready to start the new campaign as soon as a definite date is set.

the Huns concentrated their fire upon the Huns concentrated their fire upon us."

Restriction of immigration for a period of from two to four years, or until the United States can become accustomed to the reconstruction period was discussed by Fred Scarcliff and Robert Cunningham, followed by several impromptu talks.

"Industry is curbed to some extent, waiting for a drop in prices," Mr. Cunningham said. "This accounts for the surplus of labor. This surplus is bound to continue for a certain length of time. We should not increase it by allowing foreigners, glad to escape from the burdens of their native country, to flood our land,! We can combat Bolshevism with more case by restricting immigration until our own people become acquainted to the changing condition."

To bring home to the people that general contractors are a, body of organized experts, is the big need of the builders, according to a talk given at the Hunth of the Grand hotel last night by G. W. Buchholz, acting general secretary of the Association of General Contractors of America.

Relimbursement for actual toss to some contractors who finished war work as a patriotic duty, when they werelosing money due to fluctuating prices, was favored by those present. Alderman Thomas Welsh addressed the builders, according to a talk given at the distribution of schools and bridges was impressive. City Engineer C. V. Kerch said the modern policy of those letting contracts was not to accept the cheapers to do the work.

DEALERS IN PAINTINGS EFFECTED BY NEW TAX

Local dealers in paintings and sculptures are effected by the federal luxury tax which became a law Feb. 24, which imposes a tax of 10 per cent on all articles sold. Section 902 of the revenue bill provides that there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon sculptures, paintings, statuary, art porcelains, and bronzes sold by any person other than the artist a tax equivalent to 10 per cent of the sale price.

Every person liable to this tax is required to make monthly returns under oath in duplicate and pay the taxes imposed to Burt Williams, internal revenue collector at Madison. The returns shall contain such information as prescribed and be made at such times as directed.

Dealers subject to this tax should request blanks from Mr. Williams.

A strong program has been arranged by members of the newly organized Rock County Good Roads association. Frank Cannon, secretary of the state association, will be the chief speaker and with the assistance of several other men will advance the many advantages of concrete highways.

A special featur film will be flashed on the screen at the banquet. The film graphically depicts the difference between ordinary roads and concrete roads.

between ordinary roads and contrete roads.

At the regular spring election April 1, the voters will decide the question of whether Rock county shall issue bonds to the amount of $1,500,000 to cover the cost of constructing 100 miles of concrete highways in the county. State and federal aid moneys will be forthcoming over a period of a number of years so that if the county waits for this money it will take 25 years to complete the network of highways. By voting the bond issue the state and federal aid funds received trearly may be used in liquidating the loands.

Taking Away

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D Secretary of Correspondence Department; Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT-Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.—John 1:29.

It would seem that John the Bap-the prophets, should announce his great succesas the one fulfilling the prophecies reaching back to the garden of Eden; as the Son of David, the King of the Jews; as the great Prophet for whose coming the Jews had been looking for centuries; as the Mighty God, the Everlasting Fa-ther, the Prince of Peace. But he did not do so. He simply said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the

In the field of John's vision there was a black cloud of sin, out of which wrath was falling on men the world over. He saw men enslaved by sin. He saw that they were to die eternally on account of sin, and in Jesus he saw the world's Savior.

It seems strange that the greatest curse on man should be given a name containing only three letters; yet the greatest idea that man can entertain, as a name, contains only three letters-God. It may be fanciful, but there is possibly a suggestion that these two words; so short, should always be considered together. No God, "Sin is the transgression of the law." If there were no God to promulgate law there could be no sin. Sin was the ugly thing that separated man from God, and that now threatens to make that separation eternal, and none but God himself could take It away.

With very many sin is simply the transgression of the law of God that affects oneself or society; it is only vice or crime. It is nitogether proper to speak of sinning against one's fellow men and against himself. A certain man, whose name is familiar because notorious within the last four years, sinned greatly against society at large, against the whole human race. If a man thinks he has preserved a conscience vold of offense toward his ferrow men he thinks that he is meeting all God's requirements. Man frequently speaks of transgression of the law as directly affecting himself and others, but often that man is altogether indifferent to the practical fact that there is a consideration for above this of what sin does, and that consideration is that sin affects God.

There is nothing needed now more than a sense of God. There are many who are utterly godless and they are not called atheists, but they are atheists practically. As far as Interest in God is concerned God might as well not be. There are, however, some evidences that this sense of God is being realized as never before. A soldier in France wrote, "All Infidels are in the rear; everyone here at the front believes in God and the

In the Bible we have two very clear Illustrations of sensitiveness to sin as offense against God. When Joseph was tempted by the wife of Potiphar he was saved by the thought, "How can I do this thing and sin against God?" Here was utter indifference to anything but the thought of sinding against God. The other case is that of David who prayed, "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned and done this evil in thy sight." Again, utter indifference to the consequences of his sin as touching himself and others. The same thought is reflected in the predigal's words when he returned to his father. This recognition and confession of offense against God is the door through which the true penitent comes into a place of deliverance. It is here that he secures spiritual freedom and that spiritual freedom is only realized when the guilt of sin is taken away.

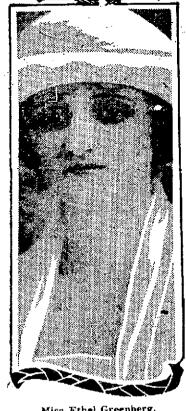

The taking away of sin is real. The was tempted by the wife of Potiphar

The taking away of sin is real. The strong shoulders of the Son of God bear it away, as the scapegoat of old bore away the sins of Israel into the wilderness. If Jesus Christ is able to carry away the sin of the world it is quite reasonable to say that he can take nway the sin or sins of any man. There are some who fear that they may have sinued so grievously that their sin can never be taken away, but if Jesus Christ can take away the sin of the world, which certainly means

CONFIDENT JEWS WILL GET JUSTICE AT PEACE TABLE

Miss Ethel Greenberg.

Confidence that the peace conference will recognize the demands of the Jews for world equality for all people, including civil, political and religious rights for the Jews in the country of their birth or adoption, is expressed by Miss Ethel Greenberg of Durham, N. C. She was one of the eighteen women who attended the recent American Jewish congress in Philadelphia, called for the purpose of preparing and presenting the case of the Jews before the conference and urging the big powers to give the Jews their rights.

Voice of the People

To the Editor:

To correct an impression that to a great extent prevails with those who do not know the facts and that was given strength by a first page article in a recent issue of the Gazette, let us say that the 4th of March 1918, Co. M landed in France. A few days later Capanin Caldwell was transferred to a regular army command. The privates with the exception of a very few were distributed in companies A, B, C, D, and E, of the 28th inf. 1st division of the regular army.

They are today north of the Rhine in Germany. The Company M who was a part of the 32nd division, 128th infantry is not positively our Company M of Janesville. Not the Co. M who swing so proudly through our streets with Captain, Caldwell at the head, with Licutenants Rau and Pelton with the boys who are so imbedded in our hearts who by the closest lies of blood and sympathies are bound to us. Not but what we honor whoever are soldiers in Co. M of the 128th infantry of the 32nd division but people think our Company M is the one on the way to a port of embarkation for home. They are not.

The 1st division of regulars was first in everything but coming home. They will be among the last.

Hal. Reifenberg.

Hal. Reifenberg.

The article, referred to by the writer of the above communication, explained that one of the members of Company M had written to Judge Maxheld, telling him 20 members of Company M, most of them Janeseville boys, had left the Rhine and were on the first leg of the Journey home. It would not be reasonable to suppose that Company M would come back intact, and it seems that a fine line of distinction is made by the writer of the communication in declaring that members of Company M are not coming home. We have been unable to obtain any information other than that received by Judge Maxheid. We do not know where the writer obtained his information that the Rhine.

Adapted from the heart-compelling story of the same name by Richard Washburn Child. It is a play imbued with the good in human nature. Faith of woman in man and faith of man in man is the theme. In the story of a young man, hopeless and down, for lack of faith in himself, becomes, to use his own words, "a thing with the soul of a typewriter and the heart of an adding machine." Utterly discouraged, he decides that he has made his life the barren thing it is and so must bide the consequences alone. In this darkest hour comes Faith, in the form of building light of love and success they bring him with a cleared vision and renewed ambition. It is a picture which shows the strong human need for human faith and encouragement—the beacon lights of the world.

NEWS FROM OVERSEAS

To the Editor of The Stars and Stripes

The Official A. E. F. Paper Published in Paris.

 ${f I}$ am not the guy who really won the war, nor did ${f I}$ see all the fronts, but there are a lot of other birds in this outfit who didn't get as far toward Berlin as yours truly. Having introduced myself to my enthusiastic readers, stand back and allow me to begin.

Mountains and Molehills.

My subject tonight will be a few words about the Y. M. C. A. Some of the lads don't seem to like it, and have started to make the crowd back home think it's a false alarm. Now, Ed, you know that it's an easy thing to scatter the vitriol here and there, and there is a certain classof young volunteers who would rather do it than eat. I'm one of those people who like to crab a little myself; it's a habit I learned around the scuttle but (ask the gob what I mean), but these vitriol boys are on the wrong track this time. They are citing isolated cases that have happened during this year and a half, and making a mountain out of a mole-hill. This puts the entire Y. M. C. A. on the witness stand in self-defense, and that is a thing that should not be. Let's drop off a few points, jibe, and look around. What do we see, mate?

Unselfishness of Secretaries.

We see hundreds of men who could have kept the home fires burning in the U. S. A. and earned a good wage along with the slackers and the genuine non-drafted men at any number of good paying positions. What did they do? They came to France and kept on the job morning, noon and night every day of the week. They kidded the brawny fight ters in the S. O. S. with movies, candies, cignizates and desert words. arettes and decent words.

After you have done that about 6,000 hours, more or less, you begin to get sick of it. Back in the S. O. S. the transportation was available, and the supplies came into the canteens. But up at the front, when you were lucky to get clothes and chow, it was a pretty tough proposition, and whatever did come up to the Y. M. C. A. was nabbed by the guys on the special details and various trains back with division. Some of it did get up to the front, but not enough to create a panic. But that wasn't the fault of the Y. M. C. A., it was the inevitable result of a constant forward movement in open warfare. I suppose some of our heroes wanted to get hot chocolate dropped on ad-vanced outposts by airplanes. It.'s too bad about those Since I've been up with machine guns I've never seen anything of this chocolate ration, that the Q. M. Corps serves out troops, and I don't expect to do so either. Nor do I feel any anguish because the Y. M. C. A. didn't feed do I feel any anguish because the Y. M. C. A. didn't feed me in a fox-hole, especially when I know who had the spending the week with Mrs. Whaley, left today for her home in Janesville.

A Typical Case.

There was a lad named Wilbur who was the secretary assigned to our battalion. He had been turned down for the Army because he had one eye. So he sought the lucrative and luxurious life of the Y. M. C. A., thus hoping to be of some service to his country. When he found that it was impossible to drag chocolate bars and eigars over the top with machine guns, he gave first aid to the wounded under shell fire. He had the time of his young life, and no one had anything on Wilbur when it came to courage. The Boche winged him up at Blanc Mont in Champagne.

There were lots of Wilburs in the Y. M. C. A. if you start investigating. I hate to see a lot of crabs ignoring

When we started on our marathon via France, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Germany, we were lucky to have our emergency rations keep up with us. Then we settled in various castles on the Rhine, and the crabs began to scream for the Y. M. C. A. Where was it? Ask the Army about that—ask why the trainloads of stores were sidetracked so that more important things could come up. But now our soldier boys are getting enough candy to make each and everyone sick, and enough cigarettes to totally destroy the lungs.

Work of "Y" Women.

I have purposely failed to touch upon the work of the women in the Y. M. C. A., because I couldn't adequately express the appreciation that we must all, feel for their sacrifices and their infinite patience with us. They come from the best American womanhood, they are the finest type possible to obtain, and their refining influence among us has been evident in every camp that they have graced by their presence. They have been an inspiration to many of us, conscious or unconscious of that inspiration though

Just consider what they have given up at home to come over with us and to slave for us, yes, slave for us. Do you think it easy to put up with our general indifference and constant demands and continual kicks and to smile and be pleasant and truly sympathetic? Well, it isn't easy, and if we try for a moment to put ourselves in their place and cater to the A. E. F., we shall get the point.

"Ain't it Awful, Mabel."

Aain't it awful, Mabel, did you hear that the Army is going to try three secretaries who stole money? We don't call that "salvaging," do we? No, we don't. Three out of how many-1 haven't the figures at present-but I'll bet my steel Stetson that the percentage is negligible. On the other hand, how many of our crusaders have gotten the yellow ticket for the same thing. commissioned and otherwise? Oh, but now you are attacking our set, and that isn't fair! Well, here's one old-timer who got a square deal from the Y. M. C.A., and it's an Irish Catholic who says so. Take a straw vote and see what the conservatives think

CHAPTER XXVII.

Valor in Retrospect. In the month of May, when the chestnuts blocm in the green delis, where the delicate young foliage holds the light as in golden cups, a young man walked through one of the small allees of the Bois at the fashionable noon hour, a little reddish dog trotting at his heels. The young man walked with an imperceptible limp. He was thin, as men are who have lived hard and who have overcome tremendous obstacles. He was tanned as men are browned who have come from eastern and extreme southern countries.

The little dog had also an imper ceptible limp occasioned by a bicycle running over him when he was a puppy.

The two companions seemed immensely to enjoy the spring day. Sabron every now and then stood for a few moments looking at the gay passers by, pedestrians and equestrians, enjoying to the full the repose of civilization, the beauty of his own

Pitchoune looked with indifference upon the many dogs. He did not stir from his master's side. When Sabron was quiet, the little animal stood at attention; he was a soldier's dog. He could have told dog stories to those dogs — could insignificant worldly have told of really thrilling adven-tures. His brown eyes were pathetic with their appeal of affection as they looked up at his beloved master. He had a fund of experience such as the poodles and the terriers led by their owners could not understand. Therefore Pitchoune was indifferent to them. Not one of those petted, ridiculous house dogs could have run for miles in the dark across an African desert. could have found Beni Medinet and fetched relief to his master. Pitchoune was proud of it. He was very well satisfied with his career. He was still young; other deeds of valor perhaps lay before him-who can tell? At any rate he had been shown about at the ministry of war

When Sabron spoke to him he leaped upon him and wagged his tail. After a few moments, as the two stood near the exit of an allee leading to one of the grand avenues, Pitchoune slowly went in front of his master and toward two ladies sitting on a bench in the gentle warmth of the May sun-Pitchoune, moved from his usual indifference, gave a short bark, walked up to the ladies, and began to shuff about their feet. The younger lady exclaimed, and then Sabron, lifting his hat, came forward, the crimson color beating in his dark tanned cheeks.

The Marquise d'Esclignac beld out both hands to the officer:

"It's nearly noon," she said, "and you don't forget that you have promiged to lunch with us, do you, Monsieur le Capitaine?"

Sabron, bending over her hand, assured her that he had not forgoiten. Then his eyes traveled to her companion. Miss Redmond wore a very simple dress, as was her fashion, but the young officer from Africa, who had not seen her near by until now and who had only caught a glimpse of her across the opera house, thought that he had never seen such a beautiful fress in all his life. It was made of soft gray cloth and fitted her closely, and in the lapel of her mannish little buttonhole she were a few Parma vio-He recognized them. AWOMAN'S BUSINESS

Nor was the tension only between Nor was the tension only between Walt and Janet. Walt himself had daily to fight within himself all that Janet believed. That he no longer had Janet's outspoken and inspiring encouragement to hearten him was a great loss and taxed his strength the harder. He lived mostly on his connage these days, and Janet's cheer was sorely needed nourisliment. One evening, when he found work impossible and Janet was at the office working overtime on her magazine

THE OUTLOOK

To quarrel or not to quarrel? That is the question in married life, which clamors to be answered and never will be. The easier way is to say with the careless thinker, "Never quarrel!" But a quarrel is not the cause of marital happiness so much as the effect. It is the natural outlet and the sore may fester and take some other and more dangerous escapement.

Janef was both exasperated and depressed at Walt's refusal to work in the serial story for Roy Nicoll. It seemed, to her there were a million or real reason against it. The lowering of his little bank reserve: the monatonous rejections of his work by editors and play managers, with their chorus of "This is fine and strong but not for the popular taste"; the lean, famished look on his face from overwork and undernourishment of the spirit—all those harassed Janad de Roy Nicol's offer loom in greater splendor. But she bit back every word of disapproval at his course. She for the had enough to bear.

But if she succeeded in suppressing her fault-finding with what seemed to her his stubborn refusal, she could not accept Necol's proposition. Quarrels misunderstanding, would perhaps have arisen. But they might have cleared the air; at any rate, the tension would not have sought another outlet.

Nat went to the Lafayette for a smoke and a crumb of old-time command a crum over to firm and came over to firm and came over to firm one in the came of the proposite chair.

That was a splendid bit of yours in Truth"—"The Silken Noose"—"Two," Walt laugh. Lucy read it will laugh. Lucy read it will laugh. Lucy read it will laugh. Lucy read it well laugh. There was no piessure in his laugh. Lucy read it well. Bit by this she got him to fell her of Egy Nicoll and his offer. Nicoll's whole metive and scheme. Since the proposition of the splendid proposition of the proposition of t the right direction. There is much that is shabby about our bohemian crowd here. But they are not afraid to living on crusts and cooking on a kerosene stove if the situation calls for it. Janet's seen so much penury in her earlier days that it's become a nightmare to her. Eve seen so much of it, that I've become callous to it. That's the difference between us—that and the fact that I'm a rebel; while she belongs at the king's court. And you, Walt—where do you belong?"

A party of gay monentities in evening dress, chattering futilities and staring with slummers' eyes at Walt and the strikingly dressed Lucy, cutletty chatting, passed by thom. The women were all of the "Louise" type Walt had described in his story.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

There is no reason why a woman can not do anything, when she gets a chance to sproud her wings."

This is the belief of Mrs. Paulino W. McMillan who is claimed by Milwaukee to be the only woman commercial sciencial supplies in the country. Only now Mrs. McMillany has graduated from the selling on the road to sales manager for a big Ohio concern.

In her ten years on the road she has made an enviable record for hereif. She has worked with steady fuccess until today she is the highest salaried woman in the state—or she was until she went to Ohio.

This has been her job for the past year. She became assistant to the president of an Akron, O., electrical concern, and became also general sales manager. The is she helped in the reorganization of the company after a big fire, was an active executive in the reorganization of the company and was in charge of many details of the building. With the work of reorganization and febuilding completed, she came to Milwaukee for a rest, having gotten the wheels turning by themselves.

In summing up her work Mrs. McMillan says. "In ten years on the road selling to men as a business woman, asking no favors or special consideration because I was a woman, but playing the game in the man's way but the same in the man's way

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS.

"Yes, Rollo dear," went on Mr. Proons, little Rollo's tutor, "the average value of stock in human muture, to give a slightly financial tinge to my sociological observations, is now a hundred per cent above par. Intelligence is as common now as fleas were a thousand years ago, and culture, Rollo, is advancing by leaps and bounds, or at jest by joits and jerks."

"And doesn't anyone believe in Black Art, and other forms of magic, as they did in days agone?" asked little Rollo.

"Oh, dear, no!" quoth Mr. Proons with a tolerant smile.

Just then a vendor of patent medicine raised his raucous voice:

"Don't crowd, gents, don't crowd! They's plenty for all! Take home a two quart bottle of Floczit's Fixum. Guaranteed posuloolly to cure rough hande, receding chins, splurvy, Jigg's desease, missing children and cold shop in the stores.

As one man, the mob surrounding him surged, money in hand, to buy Hozziti's Fixum.
"Rollo," said Mr. Proons with an embarrassed cough, "if I have happened to say anything about a so-called increase in the quality of a man's brain; I trust you have taken it in the jesting spirit in which it was offered."

And he hurriedly pulled his little charge into a hardware store and bought him a jelly soda to occupy his mind.

The counties that have under consideration the bond question of this city of Chilton would resideration the bond question of this commendable for a person that it is commendable for a person or corporation to be in debt. A man that is not in debt more ability and talent than he has more. The person who is not in (By JOHN D. O'HARA) Most people in general, and hunt-s particularly, have an idea that all awks and owls should be exterminated; and they let no opportunity pass ated; and they let no opportunity pass to kill them when possible. Why this is so, is partly through the lack of knowledge most people have about these birds. The fact is that some few are known to have a tendency to kill chickens and birds, but this is true only in part, as all of our hawks and owls are of great benefit to man, in assisting him to rid the fields and barns of mice, rats, and other roddents, which would otherwise become a nuisance.

While the great horned owl, snowy owl, Cooper's hawk, American gosh hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, are among the "black sheep" of the owl and hawk families as regards the killing of chickens and birds, they also help to kill the pests. This benefits the farmer. But if you must kill these, why kill the little screech owl, long-eared owl, barn owl and saw whetter the smallest of our owls,—all of which evidently has or believes that he has more ability and talent than he has money. The person who is not in debt is a loaner and is one who has more money than brains. Therefore, Wisconsin will make no mistake if it follows the policy employed by successful individuals and corporations and bonds itself to obtain good roads more readily than have been obtained during the past few years.

Hawk Circles Upward.

Who is it that has not marvoied at the sight of a red-tailed hawk as he gracefully soars in the air like a minature aeroplane, rising circle after circle, until he is but a small speek in the sky, and then descends with one swoop to the ground? This is certainly a sight worth seeing and this is by one of the hawks, which is a benefit to mankind, and slaughtered because he is a hawk.

The marsh hawk is another of these benefactors to man, ridding the marshes of moles, mice, sankes and other vermin, but being a hawk, he must pay the death penalty; and I might reiterate the same in regard to the other hawks.

Hears Screech Owl at Night.

Who has not been awakened in the night by the weird sound of the little screech owl as he sits in the tree near your window, searching the lawns, fields, or barns for nice, rats, etc.? The same may be said of the shorteared owl, long-eared owl, and waw whet.

Arother pernicious habit I would whet.

Another pernicious habit I would mention, that is the indiscriminate killing of bitterns and herons. These birds are shot regardless of the fact that they are not game birds, just for the "fun" of killing, which seems to be the one dominating idea of the average hunter.

A CONTRACTOR

THE SUGAR MAPLE

UGAR MAPLE is one of the most popular shade trees and is seen on the streets of many cities and towns throughout the United States. It is shapely, combines many shades of color in the fall and casts a dense chade. It thrives better in tewns and villages than in large cities, for it requires plenty of moisture and is affected by smoke, dust and illuminating gas. It is known almost as far west as the Rockies. It is by far the most valuable of about seventy members of the maple family which grow throughout the world. If trees had human characteristics it would be the banker of the forest community. It has hundreds of uses and appears in fifty of the fifty-five industries in which wood is generally employed in the United States.

The leaf of the sugar maple is shaped somewhat like the human hand, the edges being divided into five points or lobes. The seaves are thin in texture and colored deep green on the upper surface and pale green beneath. The leaves and buds stand opposite each other on the twigs. The flowers appear with the leaves in April or May. The flowers that produce the pollen are in separate clusters from those which produce the fruit. The fruit is winged, two being joined together to form the familiar "maple key." The clusters of keys often remain on the tree over winter, thus differing from the red and silver maples whose fruits ripen early in the summer and fall quickly. The bark is usually ashen gray, but may be a dark brown. On young trees it is smooth, but on older ones has deep furrows and is divided into broad plates or large, shaggy flakes. A sugar maple will produce two or three pounds of sugar. The colder the season the larger the amount of sugar.

The Man She Loved

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"A heartless coquette!" "I fancy you are right. Miss Gladys Trent has certainly won the record of a finished flirt."

The speakers at a popular city club did not know that they had an interested auditor. Arthur Worrell. stranger to them, seated at an adjoining table, gave a quick start. His hands clenched. Sudden anger blazed in his eyes. Then he banished resentment and indignation and pressed a hand over a pocket in his coat. There rested the faded bud of a rose the young lady in question had given him only a week previous. It recalled the velvety cheek he had been allowed to kiss, the sweet voice that had murmured in his enraptured ear,

"I shall love you always." The memory had power to restrain him from a fierce assault upon the reckless gossipers who had bandled her name. Still be listened. "Yes," observed the first speaker,

"it's a long line of admirers for the haughty social queen."

"I don't quite understand her, though," rejoined his companion, "She charms a sultor only to coldly turn him down in the finality. It must be that she covets having a constant train of worshipers, recruited anew as she wearles of the original adorers."

The speaker entered into details of the season's catches of Miss Trent. Their story was circumstantial and they talked like men well aware of the premises. A qualm of slight distress afflicted Arthur as the men moved away from the table and he reflected over what they had said. Could he doubt Gladys Trent? Ah. no! A thought of her dear, truthful face abided with him. They had met at a quiet, remote summer resort, and for two weeks he had been under the spell of her charms. He had told her of his love. She had frankly responded to his plea, but had spoken of her aunt, Mrs. Walworth, a city social leader, and had invited Arthur to call at her home when she returned thither.

It was the afternoon of the day when Gladys was to arrive in the city. Arthur was seated in his office awaiting his automobile, which he had or-dered by phone. He chanced to glance over a newspaper. He started visibly as his eye fell upon the item: The Grand Pre Asphalt company of Mississippi went into the hands of a receiver today."

Arthur was startled, shocked. He had received no intimation that the company was weak. If it was a bad failure he was a poor man with the exception of a few thousands. His investment in the company named represented all he possessed.

"I must tell Gladys. Of course it alters my social status, but what will she say? It shall be a test."

An hour later he was at the Walworth Mansion. Gladys received him warmly, and motioning toward a drap-ery said, "My aunt will be here shortly."

"Before she comes I have something to show you, Gladys," spoke Arthur seriously, and he handed her the Item he had cut from the newspaper. "That means that I am a poor man."
"Why do you tell me that?" she inquired. "Because it so materially alters my status."

"Not with me." she instantly interrupted him. "Arthur, if you were the poorest man in the world I would marry you, if you would take me."

Sternly, coldly Mrs. Walworth spoke she entered the room. She had overheard what had passed between the two.
"I presume this is the Mr. Worrell you mentioned," she said slowly, with a ichilling glance at Arthur. "Under a chilling glance at Arthur. the circumstances he will, of course, recognize the propriety of abandoning his pretensions for your hand."

"But I do not wish him to," spoke

Gladys clearly. "Aunty, for two years I have tried to please you in your ambition to place me high in society. I have been pleasant to fortune seekers until they have infringed on my conception of real love. Then, at the risk of being termed a heartless flirt, I have dismissed them. I have been waiting for my ideal-I have found him. I shall become the wife of Mr. Worrell the day he asks me."

Mrs. Walworth walked out of the room, highly affronted and indignant. You will come again later, dear,' whispered Gladys as Arthur left the

At his office Arthur found a telegram awaiting him. It was from his father and it read: "Action at the plant merely a friendly receivership to provide for liquidation of the business—your rights protected."

When he called at the Walworth home that evening he found the mistress alone in the reception room.

"I will inform my nlece you are here," she said loftily, and arose to leave the apartment. "One moment, please," spoke Arthur, and exhibited the telegram. This very materially changes my circumstances." "Oh, you young people!" cried Mrs.

Waiworth, pleasantly enough now, "You will have your own headstrong

"I hope you will be my friend," responded Arthur, noting the politic change in her manner. "I surely wish the good will of the nearest relative of-my future wife."

A Thrilling Pirate Yarn

Long before the slinking submarine took its toll of human lives and sought to strike terror into the hearts of those who sailed the ocean on peaceful missions, there existed another form of sea frightfulness in the Spanish buccaneers and pirates who roamed the broad expanse of blue in quest of treasure.

Wolves of the Sea By RANDALL PARRISH

is a stirring account of the daring adventures of young Geoffry Carlyle, who joins the crew of a pirate ship. There is a treasure chest, a dark mystery aboard a derelict plague ship, the burning, vengeful hatred of "Black" Sanchez, and the constant bristling dangers of bloody fights, mutiny, storms and shipwrecks, before the hero finally wins freedom, fortune and happiness for himself and beautiful Dorothy Fairfax. Red Cross Knitters Are Summoned To Action; Desolate Europe Calls

(By John Chapple)
The war is over, and the boys are coming home. Nations are demobilizing; millions of weary people are returning to peace time pursuits. The Red Cross has been ordered to "stack needles."

turning to peace time pursuits. The Red Cross has been ordered to "stack needles."

And yet, the war is not over. In a few weeks the fifth loan will be launched a loan more important, it that were possible, than any of the others. Today comes a new request—a request that the needles of the "Grok Rouge" be again put into action. This time-the call is not for the fighters, but for the victims, women and children suffering innocently through the actions of others.

Seven hundred and twenty sweaters, 315 pairs of stockings, 316 mufflers. That is the local quota. A lot? What will 720 swenters mean, with that many thousands of women and children dying upon the fields of victory cold and neglected. What will 316 mufflers of stockings mean when thousands of the contact with the show and ice. Where once was the glery of victory, is now the aftermath of desolation. What will 316 mufflers mean when hundreds die of cold? What of Those Who Have No Home? You have subscribed, you say, the near east fund, and money is growing scarce. Yes, you have done your share, you think, as you sit before your fire reading the newspaper. But what of those who have no fire, who have no home? Can you not sacrifice a little more? A few hours spent knitting a sweater will save one.

Mrs. Tanberg's Paintings to Be Exhibited by League

At a meeting of the Art league held yesterday afternoon at the library, the time was spent in making scrap books for the convalescent soldiers in the hospitals. In a business meeting it was announced that an exhibit of Elia Hotelling Tanberg's pictures were to be loaned to the league in the near future. They will be hung in Library hall and perhaps will be shown to the public in a special way before being placed on general view. Mrs. Tanberg is the first president of the organization, and since going to Chicago has been studying at the Art institute. Some of her pictures are now being shown in New York City. One member was taken into the organization, Mrs. William Curtess.

Plans were also made for a rummage sale to be held by the league.

LEADER IN LABOR PARTY IN ENGLAND

Sidney Webb.

Many critics call Sidney Webb the "brains" of the labor party in Eng-land. He is recognized throughout the British Isles as one of the Rock County Booming, Says Real Estate Barometer In Office Of Register Of Deeds

(By George Kalvelage)

It is difficult for any person to have the least conception of the vast amount of real estate which has changed hands in Rock county, from the first of the year up to the present time. Prominent realty men say they have never seen such heavy sales of property before. The entire county is feeling the effects of the greatest boom in history. Money seems to be plentiful, real estate dealers are busy, and everybody's happy—everybody except the deputies in the register of deed's office and they are maintaining a cheerful attitude, although literally smothered with work.

$2,500,000 Worth of Property Since January I, this year, the values of real estate sold in the county have mounted to the total of $2,488.600, according to the best figures available at the register's office. Sales of 40, 80 and 160 acre tracts of rich Rock county land have been the chief cause of the astonishing figures, although real estate sales in Janesville and Evansville have been contributory in boosting the total. More property has changed hands in these two cities in the last two months than in any corresponding period previously.

Prospendity Evident

Prospendity Evident

Prospendity Evident

It is gratifying to note this hig increase as rushing bensiness in realty circles is indicative of unusual prospective. It is generally agreed that the register's office can usually be traced to money tie-ups and business slumps.

The first day of the present month was one of the biggest days ever experienced in Mr. Smiley's office, the value of real estate transfers filed with him on that day aggregating $174,200.

March 3 was about an average day for March 3 was about an average day for the past 15 days a conservative estimate of the average daily business is given as $50,000.

Transfers of property will probably continue at the present rate throughout this month. Although April will fall short of the March record as if has been noted in past years that sales generally decline after March.

Although they did not win first or second place in the Whitewater tournament, the showing of the Janesville high school team lived up to all expectations and their playing was a joy to all who witnessed it. The first game with Evansville was one closely contested throughout and at the end of the second half stood 20 all, so that five minutes extra was mlayed. I Despite the splendle work of the blue guards a basket was made by the Evansville bunch, thus shutting off all chance of a victory.

The second game was won by the small margin of one point, 21 to 20 over Oregon. Although somewhat dampered by their defeat the Janesville men entered the game somewhat confident, as they had already defeated Oregon here some weeks ago. Contrary to all "dope" the Oregon men showed unforseen speed and at several stages of the game promised to win. Weekly Grain Report Chicago, March 8.—Corn went soarling in value this week as a result of aggressive speculative buying based largely on the fact that the visible supply had been reduced to an amount nearly without parallel at this time of the year whereas feeding requirements were far above the average. Compared with a week ago, corn prices this morning showed 8 to 2 cents advance, oats 324 to 44 cents gain and provistons a rise of 52 cents to $1.47.

Bulls in the corn market took full advantage of knowledge that there was virtually no contract stock on hand here, and that commercial values of corn seemed to be much below the feeding worth as judged by current eslimates of the large number of hogs back on farms and by the assumed disproportionately small reserve of corn ready at hand for feeding. Under such circumstances, the lifting of embargoes which had hindered the export of packing house products more than counterbalanced withdrawals of the hog price infimum without waiting far government figures and there was feverish buying on the theory that any exports of corn from this country would directly curtail the supply essential for domestic livertock.
Oats developed independent strength owing to improved domestic and export demand.

Big new foreign orders helped to lift provisions.

New York, March 8.—The final session of the week on the stock exchange was marked by further sweeping gains and feverish activity, transactions for the few hours were approximately 600,000 shares. The advise was the most comprehensive of any registered by the current week.

Equipments and shippings the most conspicuous features. In the various groups of specialties, additions to recent gains were made by leather, metal, fertilizer, food and distilling shares, but oils, motors and tobaccos lagged. Italis became dull after their early demonstration of strength. The closing was strong.

Domestic and foreign bonds, including liberty issues and Paris sixes were tirm to strong.

Assurances that the railroads are to receive banking support necessary for their maintenance and efficiency, caused further buying and short covering at the opening of today's stock market, the list making substantial additions to yesterday's general advance. Gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded in the teverish buying on the theory that any exports of corn from this country would directly curtail the supply especial for domestic livestock.

Outs developed independent strength owing to improved domestic and exports of corn and coppers also strengthened.

Big new foreign orders helped to lift provisions.

Chicago, March 8—yorn dropped sharply in value today a result of the government report showing farm reserves to be larger than had been looked for. On the setback however, a good demand developed owing to assertions that the government report did not alter the fact that there was an acute shortage of corn in the hog stanctes. Rallies were fostered too by knowledge that there were no stocks here available for delivery, and little prospects of any accumulation. Opening prices which ranged from 1% to 3% cents lower with May 1.32 to 1.33% and July 1.22% to 1.25% cents own which which out much of the initial decline.

Heavy profit taking which was encountered on the bulge, carried the market down later to a new low level for the day, but a fresh rally ensued. The close was unsettled 1 to 2% cents net lower, with May 1.32 to 1.32% and July 1.22% to 1.25% to 1.20%.

Cats weakened with carn and on the bearish showing of farm reserves of oats. After opening 1% to 2% cents lower, with May 1.32 to 1.32% and July 1.25% to 1.20%.

Home of Character---No. 360

In the design of this home we have worked out a problem of a square house of modified colonial type, suited to the man who must have comfort and convenience and yet keep within a reasonable price limit. The usually long colonial hallway has been arranged by means of French doors so as to become one of the artistic, features of the

FIRST |FLOOR

In the dining room the old-fashioned lines of the large window seat suggest the old colonial, while the modern china cabinets lend an air of today. Much thought has been given to the matter of cupboards and closets, and the second floor space has been so carefully arranged that four moderately large bedrooms are available.
